Summary of January– September 2019

Operating environment

General operating environment

- Urbanisation proceeds and the significance of the largest urban areas will increase
- Economic growth is forecasted to continue, but to slow down due to the weakening of the global economy. The slower growth of international trade and the economy is expected to be reflected in the growth of Finnish exports. Investments in residential construction are expected to contract, but to remain at a good level
- The growth of private consumption is expected to continue, supported by the increasing income level and high employment. Growth will, however, be slowed by the moderate acceleration of inflation

Business environment key figures

Population growth forecast 2019–2030

Operating environment

Residential production and price development

- The number of residential start-ups is estimated to decline from record-high levels towards more normal production volumes, the majority of the drop in the volume of residential construction will take place in the latter half of 2020
- As the rate of economic growth declines, new construction is estimated to focus increasingly on the largest urban areas
- In spite of slower economic growth, the continued trend of urbanisation will maintain the need for new apartments. The level of residential production is estimated to be sufficient in Finland's growth regions in 2019 and 2020, but there are concerns regarding the adequacy of supply thereafter
- Accelerated urbanisation increases the demand for apartments, which puts upward pressure on prices in growth centres

Housing production need 2015 – 2040

Operating environment

The popularity of rental housing increases

- The trend of regional divergence will accelerate in the coming years and the significance of the 10 largest urban areas will increase
- A growing number of households are choosing rental housing, and living in non-subsidised rental apartments will see the highest relative growth
- Urbanisation increases the demand for rental housing. Those who move to growth centres increasingly see rental housing as an easy, safe and flexible choice
- The growing demand for services is also reflected in living preferences. Living-related needs can be increasingly satisfied by services instead of owning

Change in the valuation technique of investment properties as at 31 December 2019

Change	Kojamo will shift from a transaction-based valuation technique to a yield-based valuation technique in the valuation of its investment properties
Rationale	The change in the valuation technique will make the company more comparable with its relevant international peer group
External valuation partner	Jones Lang LaSalle Finland Oy (JLL)
Entry into force	The change will be recognised in the consolidated income statement and balance sheet starting from the period in which the change takes place, i.e. in the financial statements of 31 December 2019
Effect	If the fair value of Kojamo's investment properties were to be assessed using the new valuation technique at the end of September 2019, the fair value would be an estimated EUR 760–840 million higher than it is under the transaction-based valuation technique used currently The change is a change in accounting estimates by nature. The change will not be applied retrospectively The change will have no impact on Kojamo's total revenue, Funds From Operations (FFO), investments in new development and acquisitions of housing stock, for which Kojamo has issued guidance for 2019

Outlook, financial targets and dividend policy

We are progressing toward our strategic targets

Outlook for Kojamo in 2019 (specified)

Kojamo estimates that in 2019, the Group's total revenue will increase by 3–5 per cent year-on-year. In addition, the company estimates that the Group's FFO for 2019 will amount to between EUR 137–145 million, excluding one-off items (previously EUR 134–144 million). Investments in new development and housing stock acquisitions are forecast to amount to approximately EUR 190–210 million, as no significant acquisitions of residential properties are expected to take place during the second half of the year (previously: amount to approximately, or exceed, EUR 300 million. Achieving the level of EUR 300 million would have required acquisitions of residential properties during the second half of the year). The change in the investment amount will not have a material impact on the result for 2019.

The outlook takes into account the effects of the completed housing divestments and acquisitions, the estimated occupancy rate and rises in rents, as well as the number of apartments to be completed. The outlook is based on the management's assessment of total revenue, net rental income, administrative expenses, financial expenses, taxes to be paid and new development to be completed, as well as the management's view on future developments in the operating environment.

Additionally, the outlook is based on strong demand sustained by migration, which will increase like-for-like rental income. The management can influence total revenue and FFO through the company's business operations. In contrast, the management has no influence over market trends, the regulatory environment or the competitive landscape.

Dividend policy

Kojamo's objective is to be a stable dividend payer whose annual dividend payment will be at least 60 per cent of FFO, provided that the Group's equity ratio is 40 per cent or more and taking account of the company's financial position

Dividend history

* Including extra dividend EUR 0.29 per share
Per share key figures have been adjusted to reflect the impact of the decision by the Extraordinary General Meeting of Shareholders on 25 May, 2018 regarding the share split. In the share split the shareholders received 30 new shares per each existing share

Summary

The implementation of the strategy is progressing as planned, central key figures improved during the review period: total revenue and net rental income increased

Success in development projects support the future growth: agreements on the construction of over 900 apartments in the coming years

Occupancy rate reached 97.1 per cent thanks to the development of the renting process and the growth of the webstore

Urbanisation driving Kojamo's business

Urbanisation & development of household sizes

- Urbanisation in Finland is lagging behind Western European countries
- The population growth is expected to focus in Finnish growth centres
- An increasing number of small households

Changing living preferences

Stable operating environment and legislation

- Finland is a safe country with stable political system
- The Finnish rental regulation is light compared to many other European countries: high flexibility with regards to rent levels, term and termination
 - Annual rent increase can be freely agreed in the lease agreement, no capex needed

Servicification and digitalisation

- The growing demand for services is also reflected in living preferences. Living-related needs can be increasingly satisfied by services instead of owning
- Smart homes and IoT solutions are becoming more common
